出身国や外国で過ごした経験について教えてください :

Having spent the past three years living in a foreign country, I have had the opportunity to witness the interactions between people from various nations and develop a genuine passion for cultural exchange. This experience has emphasized the significance of intercultural communication and appreciation. I firmly believe that everyone should have the chance to understand and embrace different cultures. With my background in both China and Japan, as well as exposure to English culture, I have gained invaluable insights into the importance of fostering intercultural understanding. I am genuinely thrilled to bring my knowledge, enthusiasm, and unwavering dedication to create a vibrant and engaging learning environment for the children and students of Hiroshima.

広島の子供・生徒たちにどんなことを学んでほしいですか :

I believe it is critical for children and students to develop a broad understanding of different cultures, perspectives and ideas. By embracing cultural diversity, they can develop tolerance, compassion and open-mindedness. Specifically, I want them to learn to

1. cultural appreciation: to understand their own history and cultural heritage and to respect the traditions and customs of others
2. global citizenship: to develop a sense of global responsibility, to encourage their involvement in global issues, and to promote sustainable development practices
3. Critical Thinking: Encourage analytical thinking, problem solving and creativity to develop independent and innovative minds.
4. language learning: to promote language learning, especially English, as a tool for effective cross-cultural communication and as a gateway to diverse opportunities.

Hey there! My name's Liu Ziqi, but you can call me Kristen. I'm from the coastal city of Qingdao in China, and I'm currently a senior student at Hiroshima University. My major is in environment and society, but I'm also very interested in exploring different cultures.

I'm a Sagittarius and an ENTP, and I love watching movies and working out. Qingdao is famous for its beach and, of course, Qingdao beer. So, I practically grew up on the sand and have a serious love for the ocean. It's a bit sad that I can't go sailing here in Japan, though. I really miss that thrill.

Speaking of adventures, I've got some exciting plans for the summer. I'm heading to Germany, and I'm hoping that this trip will present a wonderful opportunity for me to immerse myself in another culture, connect with new people, and gain valuable insights into the realm of cultural exchange. I'm really excited about this upcoming adventure and the potential it holds for broadening my horizons.
